

STANFORD UNIVERSITY
STANFORD, CALIFORNIA

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

June 16, 1952

Dr. Joshua Lederberg
Department of Genetics
The University of Wisconsin
Madison 6, Wisconsin

Dear Josh:

This will only be a hasty answer to your letter of June 1 since I have promised the family to take a few days off this week to go up in the mountains. I will answer in more detail later.

I am still much interested in collaborating on the manuscript for the A.A.A.S. We plan to be here and at work most of the summer, with the exception of the last two weeks in August. This would make August 15th essentially the deadline for the final manuscript.

I would think that your suggested division of labor would be both necessary and entirely suitable. As soon as I get back the end of this week I will go over the plans more definitely and prepare a tentative outline. I think it should not be too difficult to finish this off by the above deadline.

I was sorry to hear that there was no prospect of your visiting the west this summer. In any case, I was glad that you are planning on a vacation. Give my best to Esther and you will be hearing from me again shortly.

Yours,

E. L. Tatum

ELT:gz